Education: A Catalyst for Breaking the Cycle of Domestic Violence

West Jordan, Utah South Valley Services Celebrates Fundraising Success but Urges Continued Support for Survivors

West Jordan, UT – Thanks to an outpouring of community generosity, South Valley Services (SVS) is thrilled to announce that it exceeded its end-of-year fundraising goals. This remarkable achievement has already provided life-changing resources to domestic violence survivors and their families, including safe housing, transportation, and medical care.

“We’re incredibly grateful to everyone who supported us during the holiday season,” said Lindsey Boyer, Executive Director of SVS. “However, the needs of survivors don’t stop when the holidays end. Continued support is critical to ensure that survivors can rebuild their lives every day of the year.”

The organization is urging the community to sustain this momentum by:

- Exploring volunteer opportunities and ways to get involved.
- Bookmarking/Donating SVS’ urgent and ongoing needs lists to provide essential items.
- Scheduling educational presentations for workplaces, schools, and community groups to help prevent future violence.

“Every day, survivors turn to us for safety and healing,” Lindsey Boyer, Executive Director, added. “Your continued generosity ensures we can provide the resources they need to thrive.”
